Rev. Father Wilds' EXPERIENCE.

The Rev. Z. P. Wilds, well-known city missionary in New York, and brother of the late eminent Judge Wilds, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, writes as follows:

"78 E. 5th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

Messrs. J. C. Ayer & Co., Gentlemen:

Last winter I was troubled with a most uncomfortable itching humor affecting more especially my limbs, which heightened so intolerably at night, and burned so intensely, that I could scarcely hear any clothing over them. I was also a sufferer from a severe catarrh and catarrhal cough; my appetite was poor, and my system a good deal run down. Knowing the value of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by observation of many other cases, and from personal use in former years, I began taking it for the above-named disorders. My appetite improved almost from the first dose. After a short time the fever and itching were allayed, and all signs of irritation of the skin disappeared. My catarrh and cough were also cured by the same means, and my general health greatly improved, until it is now excellent. I feel a hundred per cent stronger, and I attribute these results to the use of the SARSAPARILLA, which I recommend with all confidence as the best blood medicine ever devised. I took it in small doses three times a day, and used, in all, less than two bottles. I place these facts at your service, hoping their publication may do good.

Yours respectfully, Z. P. WILDS."

The above instance is but one of the many constantly coming to our notice, which prove the perfect adaptability of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to the cure of all diseases arising from impure or impoverished blood, and a weakened vitality.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

cleanses, enriches, and strengthens the blood, stimulates the action of the stomach and bowels, and thereby enables the system to resist and overcome the attacks of all Scrophulous Diseases, Eruptions of the Skin, Rheumatism, Catarrh, General Debility, and all disorders resulting from poor or corrupted blood and a low state of the system.

NEAL AND CRAFT.

The Feeling Concerning These Much-Protected and Much-Wanted Persons.

Lexington Transcript.

One week from next Monday, February 5th, is the day set for the beginning of the trial of Neal and Craft in Grayson, Carter County. The probabilities of there being trouble, and to what extent the difficulty will go, are being discussed with increased interest every day. That troops will be sent, there is no doubt. It would be the acme of folly to send the prisoners to Carter County, with any expectation of their reaching their destination alive, without armed protection. Governor Blackburn has expressed his intention to send a strong force of State militia, and there may be 1,500 soldiers sent as an escort with the prisoners.

Various reports come from Ashland as to the reception that will be given the troops. Some people assert that there will be no opposition whatever. Others declare there is a settled determination that Neal and Craft must die by violence, and the threat is extended to Major John R. Allen, who, it is said, they will kill by bushwhacking or by shooting him from the houses.

It was stated some time ago that parties had purchased guns for the Ashland section in Cincinnati. A gentleman from Lexington was in Cincinnati recently and was taken to a dealer in fire-arms, who showed him a receipted bill for 250 Springfield rifles sent to a party in Boyd county. This story is confirmed by the fact that recently guns of this pattern have been introduced into many houses through out Carter and Boyd counties, and the country men can use these weapons with a proficiency that is marvelous. One man saw some mountain boys shooting rabbits with these guns and he says they would knock them over at 75 and 100 yards every shot. In addition to this there is hardly a mountaineer who does not have a big revolver. Some have very good shot-guns, and every home has an old-fashioned squirrel rifle.

The fact that many of these people were soldiers in the war is also mentioned. They have been under fire and do not know what fear is under any circumstances. The young men who were not in the army are cool, brave fellows, who like their fathers, when they make up their minds to do something desperate, cannot be deterred by any means. If the sentiment attributed to these people is correct, there is cause for serious apprehensions.

The following is taken from the Cincinnati News' Lexington correspondent: "A general feeling that a conflict between the Kentucky militia and a mob will occur during the approaching trial of Neal and Craft at Grayson, is causing much uneasiness here. To-day a reporter met a gentleman from Ashland, and obtained the following interview with him. Said he:

"The old feeling of revenge against the State troops for their indiscriminate shooting of our people last October is beginning to spring up again and consequently there is much feeling expressed in the matter, as the time for the trial of Neal and Craft draws near."

"Do you think there is a probability of mob violence again asserting itself?" asked the reporter.

"Undoubtedly so. We believe that a mistake was made in hanging Ellis, because, without his testimony it will be impossible to convict the prisoners."

"What if they should call upon the Sheriff after acquittal for protection, and he should invoke the military to aid in defending them from attack?"

"An attempt would certainly be made to take them from the troops anyhow, regardless of consequences. Our citizens feel that they will be prepared to avenge themselves."

"Is it probable that a soldiery numbering 800 to 1,200, well armed, would be attacked by any mob that could be gathered in Boyd county?"

"Yes, sir. My impression is that the first attempt will be made to either kill or seriously wound Major Allen, then a demoralization of the troops will follow, and it will be an easy matter to rescue Neal and Craft, and hang them. The citizens entertain a most bitter hatred against Allen, and Gov. Blackburn's expressed determination to again send that officer in command of the military has intensified the feeling, if anything."

"Should Judge Brown fail to call for troops, do you think the sheriff and posse would be sufficient to protect the prisoners during the trial?"

"No, sir. The latter would be hung before they reached Grayson."

"Will the military be attacked before they reach Grayson or during the trial?"

"That is a matter to be determined yet. But my impression is that nothing will be attempted until Neal and Craft are either acquitted or there is a hung jury. We know there is not sufficient evidence to convict them, but we are firmly convinced they are guilty, and it is determined they shall never leave Carter county alive. Of course the people of that county are opposed to mob violence and will attempt to prevent it, but they will be powerless."

These statements coming from a gentleman who resides in Ashland and has had an opportunity of knowing the feelings of the people there, are worthy of consideration. He was interviewed before the late "war" at Ashland, and expressed the same feeling relative to that attack which he does to the present approaching trial.

Our New West.

Some years ago the country between the Missouri River and the Rocky Mountains was regarded as a desert; at best fit for nothing but grazing purposes. These plains cover an enormous extent of country, and there is now reason to believe that in the course of the next twenty five years the greater part of it will become arable land, which will grow magnificent crops. There are three agencies at work effecting this change. One of these is irrigation. The streams which issue from the melted snows of the Rocky Mountains are being carefully utilized to irrigate large sections of land east of the foot hills. As is well known, the Mormons have converted the Salt Lake Valley into a perfect garden. Before they set up irrigating ditches Utah was in appearance the most unpromising portion of the earth's surface for the growth of agricultural products, but water applied to these sage-brush deserts changes them as if by magic, and makes them wonderfully fruitful. Still another means of utilizing these grazing plains is found in the sinking of artesian wells. The water which reaches the surface by this means is gradually also bed by the thirsty soil, and the desert blossoms like the rose. Many of these wells have already been opened, and in time there will be thousands of them, each the center of an almost recreated district of country. But the most potent influence at work is the steady extension of population west of the rainfall. As the country becomes settled and trees are planted, the rains become more frequent and heavier. It is believed in time even Denver will be subject to showers sufficiently frequent to convert the arid regions of its neighborhood into fruitful fields. Horace Greeley predicted that the time would come when these dry plains would become dotted with wind-mills, which will pump up the water out of the vast depths of the artesian wells. It is claimed that the building of railroads has a great deal to do in attracting the rain from eastern skies and watercourses. — Demorest's Monthly.

The object of the new company is to construct a railroad from New Richmond, via Felicity, to Aberdeen, O., and when completed, the road will be operated in connection with the Cincinnati and Eastern.

The Great "Cold Wave."

New York Herald.

The "cold wave" advancing from the Rocky Mountains is one of the most phenomenal areas of high pressure on record. The extent of it on Saturday (from the Pacific coast to the Mississippi) indicated that it did not originate in British America though it may have received accessions from the vast frigid region northwest of the Upper Missouri Valley. In the geographical area covered by this anti-cyclone it will compare with the great "cold wave" of Siberia. But in the intensity of pressure it is less marked than some which in recent years have traversed our central valleys. The lowest temperature reported on Saturday along its line of advance was forty-two degrees below zero at Fort Washakie, Wyoming Territory. But, great as this minimum is, it was twice exceeded in severity by the cold of December 29, 1880, and of January 29, 1881, on both of which days, according to the Signal Service reports, the thermometer at Fort Benton, Montana, sank to fifty-nine degrees below zero. Even with the low minimum temperatures of the present cold wave the winter of 1883 so far falls beyond that of 1880-81 in rigor. In consequence of the warm depression of Saturday in the states south of the Ohio by which comparatively warm masses of Gulf air were drawn northward and in front of the great frost wave, the latter will not lower the temperature on the Atlantic seaboard to a very extraordinary degree, but its icy air will be very considerably tempered before it reaches the Alleghanies.

FRIDAY EVENING, JAN. 26, 1883.

ROSSER & McCARTHY,
PUBLISHERS AND PROPRIETORS.

THERE was a man in Old Kentucky,
And he was wondrous wise,
He dashed along the road and tried
To scratch out both his eyes,
And finding that an eye was cut,
With all his might and main,
He dashed into the Circuit Court,
To get it in again.
The Judge he sent the jury out,
To for a verdict try.
And this is what the jury said:
"Your Honor, narry eye."

The river is full of heavy ice to-day.

Mrs. JACKSON, a worthy colored woman of Ripley, was found dead at her home in that place on Monday.

Don't forget the entertainment by Baird's Minstrels at the Opera House this evening. It will be a rare treat to all who may attend.

In the Circuit Court Thursday, the 25th the jury in case of Perry Rice against the Maysville & Lexington Turnpike Co., rendered a verdict in favor of the defendant.

THERE will be an ice cream and oyster supper at the M. E. Church, in Chester, to-morrow (Saturday) evening, for the benefit of the church. The public is invited to attend.

SINCE Mr. Carr accepted the work of canvassing Maysville for the new novel "The Duchesse Undine" almost everybody he has gone to has subscribed for the book. It is cheap at the price it sells for, and every family in this city should have a copy of it. He will visit every one.

The case of the Commonwealth against George Cooper, charged with murder, was continued till the April term, on motion of the defendant. Absence of important witnesses was the ground upon which the continuance was granted. Twenty-two witnesses for the Commonwealth and eight for the defendant were recognized in the sum of $100 to appear at the next term of court.

The suit of Brown, Rice & Quinby, of New York, against James J. Shackelford, to recover margins lost upon wheat bought for future delivery, was tried in the Circuit court this week and decided in favor of the defendant. The effect of this decision is to render the dealings in futures on margins to be void and not enforceable. One point decided in this case was that the commission merchants in New York had violated instructions in regard to the sale of the article dealt in.

A New Dish Worth Trying.

The New York, Evening Post says: An oyster omelette may be a new dish to some cooks, and I can assure them that it will be a favorite if the family like oysters. Stew a dozen oysters in their own liquor, if possible, if not, use a little water; roll two or three lumps of butter the size of butternuts in flour, and put in and let it come to a boil; salt it well, and add black or cayenne pepper to suit your taste. Take out the oysters and chop them, and, if necessary make it thick, add a little flour to the sauce, put the oysters in and set the saucepan in which they are on the back part of the stove. Beat your eggs until very light, and add to them two tablespoonfuls of cream or rich milk; fry in a well buttered frying-pan. When done remove to a hot platter or a deep plate and pour the oyster-sauce over it. Serve while hot.

A Glimpse into the Adelpian Circle.

Your correspondent will not pretend to say by what means he got his glimpse of the Adelpian Circle, whether he is in telephonic communication with the hall, informed by one of those sprites which the brothers invoke, or took his cue from the fact that the cloak room of the Adelpians is avoided as a death's head by the brothers, two of them having been fined for entering that room some weeks ago. The source of information is immaterial, it is enough to say the facts related in this glimpse are substantially true.

The house was called to order by President C. L. Sallee, and L. W. Galbraith, Secretary pro tem, read the minutes of the previous meeting, in which was the election of officers for the second quadrant of the Circle, which resulted as follows:

President—C. L. Sallee.
Vice President—John D. Duley.
Secretary—P. P. Parker,
Sergeant at Arms—Chas. D. Newell.
Editor Adelpian Oracle—Thos. R. Philster.

He mentioned that, in the heat of contest, some of the candidates probably voted for themselves. This caused a general uprising and it was resolved that if any one had voted for himself, it must have been the reporter and no other. The Secretary here subsided, and the conscience of the Circle seemed entirely purged and eased. The Circle then talked the business of the evening. There were a number of readings and declamations, after which the question of woman's suffrage was debated, at length with great feeling, but when put to a vote was, of course, lost.

The Adelpian Oracle was then read. This contained, beside several original poems, a number of letters and essays both scientific and unscientific. The Circle decided that at its next meeting it would settle the "Internal Revenue" question (suppose Congress will be informed, by telegraph, of their decision.) A resolution of secrecy was here brought forward, this raised such a storm as had not before been heard. The debate was most animated and the air was ringing with Latin sentences till one would have thought that was their native tongue. Mingled with this was a strange tongue which I at first took to be Greek, but afterwards learned that one of the brothers speaks Choctaw. The resolution finally carried and the society adjourned congratulating itself that it was now completely shut out from the world, and I congratulated myself that I had enjoyed a glimpse into the Adelpian Circle.

The table was covered with cakes, oysters, candies, chickens and turkeys. It was spread by the ladies of the church in the very neatest style. The best of behavior was maintained throughout the entire occasion. Several of our young ladies and gentlemen were in attendance from here. Among the number were three young gentlemen who remembering a friend in town secured for him a very handsome present—a roasted chicken, and of which he partook so freely he made himself sick. Ayer's Sarsaparilla, being highly concentrated, requires a smaller dose, and is more effective dose for dose, than any other blood medicine. It is the cheapest because the best. Quality and not quantity should be considered.

Ayer's Pills cure constipation, improve the appetite, promote digestion, restore healthy action, and regulate every function. They are pleasant to take, gentle in their operations, yet thorough, searching and powerful in subduing disease.

A nostrum largely peddled and warranted to cure acute rheumatism is made up chiefly of the oil of wintergreen. The substance is really effective but is better taken in the form of salicylic acid, which is its active principle.

A fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons was lately fined $10 and costs for "furiously riding a tricycle." He was traveling so rapidly that a constable on horseback had great difficulty in catching him, though it was shown in court that the surgeon had already traveled sixty miles that day on his machine.

A Remarkable Operation.

"I have the pleasure, gentlemen," said Dr. William H. Pancoast, at a clinic in the Philadelphia Hospital, "of introducing to you a young man who figured in one of the most wonderful feats of modern surgery." The person referred to was G. W. Lytle, a good looking and well-dressed man of twenty-four, residing at Connellsville, and his only peculiarity was a deep scar on the left cheek. He was warmly applauded by the students. Dr. Pancoast then gave the class an account of the operation, of which there had been but three performed, one each in London, Paris and Philadelphia, the great surgical centers of modern times, and which consisted in cutting apart two children who were congenitally attached. The operation was performed twenty-four years ago by the elder Dr. Pancoast, when the young man at the clinic was an infant of seven months. The child was born with a hideous appendage growing from the left cheek, and which was nothing else than an imperfectly developed infant, with hands, feet and trunk, but no head. The operation was performed at a clinic in Jefferson College, and was witnessed by all the physicians of the city, among them being the elder and younger Gross, Dr. Leidy, Dr. Dugglison and others, who have since become equally famous. It was considered bold surgery at that time, but Dr. Pancoast was confident of its propriety, and accordingly performed it, with what success was shown by the presence of the patient himself a quarter of a century later. An interesting feature of the operation is its having been performed with the crescent, then a new instrument, and the first of the kind ever used in America, and brought from Europe by the elder Pancoast. It is still in possession of Dr. Pancoast. Upon dissection the monstrosity was found provided with heart and gastrointestinal tract, as well as the organs already referred to. The case attracted considerable attention abroad, and at the request of the eminent English surgeon, Sir James Paget, a cast of the detached mass and a photograph of the child before the operation, were furnished to the museum of St. Barholomew's Hospital, London. Dr. Pancoast exhibited a copy of the daguerreotype, sent to Sir James Paget, and said he would have a photograph of the young man taken after the interval which has now elapsed, and which testifies to the wisdom and success of the operation. Dr. Pancoast is positive in the belief that all double children, such as the Siamese twins, should be severed by the surgeon's knife. This knowledge was determined by the post-mortem held upon the once famous Siamese twins, Chang and Eng, after they had been brought north by Dr. Pancoast and placed in the museum of a medical institution in Philadelphia.—Philadelphia Times.

"Taking Coffee."

It is said that some one in the Khedive's entourage has expressed a desire to give Arabi coffee. To "take coffee" with a person is a Zulu phrase for assaulting and defeating him, and even in English cricketing circles we have heard it said that the "Australians took tea with Surrey" or other victims. In the East, coffee has become the recognized substitute for the "bowl" or our tragic writers, not, of course, the "flowing bowl," but that which is accompanied by the dagger. "A cup of bad coffee" is more dreaded than the traditional bow-string in the East, and it ought certainly to be our care that Arabi's coffee is wholesome, and not some artificial concoction of beans. In Persia we regret to learn that the heir to the Shah is accused of having given coffee to the Chief of the Bahaias. The Chief declined the coffee, and declared, like the preacher who converted Colonel Quagga, that "he would take it fighting." He was therefore strangled, not without a gallant resistance, by the men who had originally intended to dismiss him in a more quiet way, and one less calculated to excite public feeling. Meanwhile, the Bahaias are anxious to entertain the heir of the Persian throne.—London Graphic.
